

Savage Minds is now anthro{dendum}!

GO >

Savage Minds

Notes and Queries in Anthropology

Happy 100 Claude!

🕒 November 28, 2008

👤 Kerim

Happy 100th from Savage Minds!

- NY Times
- Jason Baird Jackson

- Chronicle Review
- The Independent
- And many more links at Anthropologi.info.

📁 Blog post 🔖 Levi-Strauss

P. Kerim Friedman is an associate professor in the Department of Ethnic Relations and Cultures at National Dong Hwa University, in Taiwan, where he teaches linguistic and visual anthropology. He is co-director of the film Please Don't Beat Me, Sir!, winner of the 2011 Jean Rouch Award from the Society of Visual Anthropology. Follow Kerim on Twitter.

View all posts by Kerim →

One thought on “Happy 100 Claude!”

December 4, 2008 at 5:15 pm

padawan

i'm happy he's still alive, even if i suspect that if he's been around so long is only because he hasn't found a rising anthropological star to die in his (or better, her) arms as boas did with him. 😊

Comments are closed.